

Building Positive Brand Impressions through Sustainability Communications

The trend toward energy conservation and sustainability is becoming more prevalent in businesses today. There are several drivers for this:

- New federal and state regulations and compliance guidelines,
- Consumer awareness and preference, and
- Businesses are now looking at the sustainability of their partners.

Most organizations are taking legitimate steps to become more sustainable, and seeing the benefits of reduced operating costs and greater efficiencies. But many are missing a great opportunity to build their brand and increase their customer loyalty because they are unable to effectively get their sustainability message out to the market.

So how do you build positive brand impressions through effective sustainability communications? Click here to read our tips on how to build positive brand impressions.
